Bio & Professional Interests

I'm Christine Espina, and I've been a member of PNAOW since 2012. My professional interests are community/public health nursing, health policy and quality improvement, and nursing education and workforce development to impact racial and ethnic health disparities.

I have practiced in a wide variety of settings including an in-patient telemetry unit, quality improvement in an acute and outpatient setting, Washington state's nursing workforce center, and nursing academic programs. I'm currently an assistant professor at Western Washington University in Bellingham, WA in the RN-to-BSN program.

I've had the privilege to serve as PNAOW Chapter President from 2016-2018. In this role, I've learned about the extensive work of the Philippine Nurses Association of America national organization in advancing and advocating for our professional development and leadership, and supporting community development efforts in the Philippines. I'm proud of our chapter's commitment to "give back" through our local and international volunteer work, and most recently, our nursing academic scholarship program. I'm eager to see how our chapter can grow stronger and expand our impact in our community!
